

CRISIS OVER

That is the Opinion of Medical Experts Today

Official Bulletins Issued by the Doctors
Are Encouraging.

New York Medical Journal Today Has a Special Cablegram
Descriptive of the Wound and the King's Condition---
All Signs Seem to be Very Hopeful---
The Bulletins.

LONDON, June 27.—The irony of fate is being more and more realized by the people of London as the days of the King's illness continue. Today is the day when the King in state procession was to have gone before his people, whereas the people are today coming to the home of the King in anxious tones asking: "Is his majesty better?"

The anxiety caused by an official bulletin issued at 11 o'clock last night in which it was stated that his majesty's wound was causing pain, was somewhat set at rest by another reassuring bulletin posted at Buckingham palace this morning. This bulletin reads:

"His majesty had a fair night with some settled sleep. His appetite is improved and his wound much more comfortable. On the whole the King's condition is attended with less anxiety. (Signed.)

"TREVES, LISTER, SMITH, LAKING, BARLOW."

LONDON, July 27.—The last official bulletin regarding the King issued at 2 p. m. has created the most favorable impression in parliamentary circles. The opinion is held by medical experts that all danger of a septic process is ended. So far as can be seen, they say, the crisis in the King's condition may be regarded as over.

LONDON, June 27.—The official bulletin issued from the palace at 2 o'clock this afternoon was of the same hopeful tone as that issued at 10:15. The bulletin read:

"His majesty passed a comfortable morning. All the symptoms today are so far satisfactory. His temperature remains normal. No other than important fluctuations in his majesty's temperature will be recorded in the bulletins issued. (Signed.)

"TREVES, LAKING, BARLOW."

TAKES LEAVE

Of Lord Lansdowne and Will Close the Special Embassy Unless Otherwise Ordered Says Reid.

Washington, June 27.—The state department has received the following from Special Ambassador Reid, sent from London:

"I took leave of Lord Lansdowne today and after taking formal leave of the Prince of Wales, shall close the special embassy, unless otherwise instructed and quit London to pay a promised visit to Admiral Crowninshield. Lord Lansdowne expressed his warm appreciation of the President's speech at Harvard of the general American sympathy in this time of trouble. The feeling about the King today is distinctly hopeful."

MR. REID CALLS.

LONDON, June 27.—A constant stream of notables and foreign envoys, including U. S. special ambassador Reid and Prince Henry of Prussia, called at the palace today to inquire concerning the King's condition.

EARLY REPORTS CONFLICTING.

LONDON, June 27.—While reports of King Edward's condition are still conflicting the best information this morning is that he is steadily improving and unless something unforeseen occurs he will recover ultimately.

MOTHER AND SON ATTENDED SCHOOL.

Chicago, Ill., June 27.—Mrs. Thomas Balmer, of 1327 Hollywood avenue, Edgewater, has just been graduated with her youngest son at Northwestern college course and the mother, a three year course in literature. Mrs. Balmer is a Vassar graduate and is wealthy. Her other two children attend the university, so the quartet go out together every morning.

THOUSAND HOMELESS.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 27.—Revised estimates show a loss in the McCreer fire to be $270,000. Forty-eight business houses, 97 residences and two churches were destroyed. One thousand people are homeless.

RECOVERY

Is Assured Unless There be Some Unforeseen Turn in the Present
Symptoms of Patient.

New York, June 27.—The New York Medical Journal has this cable from its London correspondent:

"From the most trustworthy sources it is learned that the operation on his majesty, King Edward VII, has been successful in all respects and that no complications have declared themselves.

"The general medical opinion now is to the effect that ultimate recovery will be assured unless there be some unforeseen turn in the present symptoms.

"The wound is in a healthy and quiescent condition and there are no indications of septic peritonitis. The abscess was of large size and was opened in the usual manner by direct incision through abdominal walls. The inflammation is reported to have been limited to the site of the abscess.

"The reports that the King is on the verge of collapse have no possible foundation."

Editorially the Medical Journal says this morning: "The prospects for ultimate recovery must be mainly based on the integrity of the heart and the normal action of the kidneys. Hence an accelerated pulse or loss of consciousness from coma would be indications of most ominous import."

HAHN'S ARREST

Mansfield Warrant Will Save Him
From the New York Requisition for the Present.

Mansfield, O., June 27.—When the news of the honoring of the requisition from the governor of New York for Wm. M. Hahn by Gov. Nash reached here the attorneys for the latter immediately set about to circumvent the New York authorities and seem to have done so for the present by causing the arrest of Mr. Hahn on the same charge upon which he is under indictment in New York, the grand larceny of $39,390 from the Manhattan Fire insurance company.

The warrant was sworn out by Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Bowers of this city and Mr. Hahn, pleading not guilty to the charge of grand larceny was given into the custody of the chief of police, who is to remain with him constantly until the preliminary hearing in the mayor's court next Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Sheriff Payne, who was instructed by phone from Columbus to arrest Mr. Hahn, was in the custody of Chief Weil, and after telephoning the governor of the condition of affairs, the sheriff was instructed to do nothing until the arrival of the papers and the representatives of the New York authorities from Columbus.

is Found.

New York, June 27.—With the picture of an unknown, beautiful woman clasped to his heart, James B. Pearson, a prominent Brooklyn lawyer and married, committed suicide in his office early this morning by inhaling gas through a tube. He left a note saying he was a defaulter and a thief. He left his family penniless. No one knows the name of the woman whose photograph he held.

The Jericho of today is a collection of wretched cabins inhabited by a peculiar people, unlike any other in Palestine.

HOUSE

Passed The Philippine Bill Thursday Night.

BY PARTY VOTE AFTER A WEEK'S DEBATE.

THE PANAMA CANAL HAS WON.

And the Bill Now Goes to the President—Debate During Day Was of Lively Character.

Washington, June 27.—At 8 o'clock last night, at the end of a nine hour session and of a debate lasting night and day for a week, the House passed the Philippine civil government bill, practically as it came from the committee. It was a party vote 141 to 37 with the exception of Mr. McCall of Massachusetts, who voted with the Democrats. The minority substitute for the establishment of a temporary government in the islands and their permanent independence as soon as a stable government could be established was defeated by 135 to 95.

The debate during the day was at times of a lively character. The Democrats offered a multitude of amendments, but all were voted down, including one offered by Mr. Patterson of Tennessee, to prohibit slavery or involuntary servitude in the islands.

It was a strict party vote except for Mr. McCall and Mr. Littlefield of Maine, who voted with the Democrats for the amendment.

Before the consideration of the Philippine bill was resumed the House as was telegraphed the Advocate yesterday, by a vote of 252 to 8 adopted the conference report of the isthmian canal bill, thus accepting in toto the Senate bill. The bill now goes to the President.

The substitute for the Senate Philippine civil government bill differs from the bill as it passed the senate in many minor particulars but principally in the following:

The House sub provides for a complete system of civil government, with a legislature to consist of two Houses, one of which shall be a popular assembly elected by the Filipino people. The Senate bill contained no such provision. The legislature is to be chosen after "the existing insurrection in the Philippines shall have ceased and complete peace shall have been established therein and the fact certified to the president by the Philippine commission."

The senate provided a silver standard system in extension and perfection of that now in existence. The House measure provides a gold standard system with the gold dollar of the United States as the standard unit of value for the islands.

DEWEY SAYS HE CONTEMPLATED
WRITING A HISTORY.

WHAT HE SAID TO AGUINALDO

Before the Senate Committee the Admiral Says His Forces, Captured the Subj Garrison.

Washington, June 27.—Admiral Dewey made a statement before the Senate committee on the Philippines concerning the early operations at Manila when he was in command of the American naval forces in Philippine waters.

It consisted of a positive statement that the city had been tentatively surrendered to him at the time that the Spanish fleet was sunk.

The Admiral was questioned by Senator Lodge. He said he had first heard from Aguinaldo and his friends about April 1, 1898.

"The day before we left Hong Kong I received a telegram from Consul General Pratt at Singapore, saying that Aguinaldo was at Singapore and would join me at Hong Kong. I replied 'All right; tell him to come aboard,' but I attached so little importance to the message that I sailed without Aguinaldo and before he arrived.

"There were then many promises as to what the Filipinos would do, but I did not depend upon them. Consul Williams assured me that upon our arrival and the firing of the first gun 30,000 Filipinos would rise. None did arise and I frequently joked him upon this point."

He told about Aguinaldo's arrival, saying that he put him ashore and told him to organize his people. Aguinaldo came back discouraged and wanted to go to Japan, but the admiral told him to continue his efforts.

Admiral Dewey said that he never had recognized Aguinaldo's government, as he had no authority to do so nor did he salute Aguinaldo's flag. He never called Aguinaldo "general," but addressed him as Don Emilio. He said the Spaniards were fearful of the Filipinos entering Manila, and therefore surrendered to him in advance. Had he men then he would have accepted. He said there was no need for the loss of a man in the capture of the city. No gun would have been fired but for the desire of the governor, who said his honor demanded that a few shots be fired, "so I had to fire and kill a few people," said the admiral, but the Spaniards did not fire because he (Dewey) had warned them not to do so.

It was a surrender and if I had with me 5,000 troops with which to occupy the city I could have taken it and held it. The governor general sent word to me that he wanted to surrender to me to the navy. I could not entertain his proposition of a formal surrender because of the lack of troops to take possession of the city.

Admiral Dewey said he had written the navy department that the Filipinos were more capable of self-government than the Cubans, because he saw that congress contemplated giving independence to Cuba and he knew that the American people had little information concerning the Filipinos.

The admiral said that when Aguinaldo was at the height of his power the British admiral, Seymour, had advised the Filipino chief to tie to the Americans, as they were his best friends.

He said that when he let the Filipinos have guns and ammunition he thought it was a military necessity; looking backward he could see that they were not ready. He considered them very ungrateful in turning against the United States.

When Mr. Patterson asked about the capture of the Spanish garrison at Subj bay by the insurgents, Admiral Dewey said:

"I took that garrison. A German man-of-war had been interfering with the Filipinos.

"Why did you stop the German man-of-war from interference?" asked Mr. Patterson.

"Because I did not want any other power to interfere in the Philippines" was Admiral Dewey's answer.

Dewey said he had been reserving the story of the surrender for a history he meant to write himself.

ADMIRAL DEWEY

Today Resumed His Testimony Before the Committee—He Tells of the City's Surrender.

Washington, June 27.—In resuming testimony before the Senate committee on the Philippines Admiral Dewey in response to questions by Senator Patterson gave further details regarding the arrangement he had with the Governor General of Manila to surrender the city as soon as American troops arrived to take possession.

"The agreement was that I was to fire upon one of the outlying forts, that of Malate. I was to engage this fort and fire for a while, when I was to cease and signal by the international code. 'Do you surrender?' On the receipt of this message the Spaniards were to hoist a white flag on the south basin. Everything went according to program and, I may say, that I was the one that discovered the white flag, although I had fifty men on the lookout for it."

The Admiral said that he had read General MacArthur's testimony before the committee in which he had said that he knew nothing about any plying With Supreme Court's Decision of Thursday.

Columbus, Ohio, June 27.—As telegraphed to the Advocate yesterday afternoon the Supreme Court ousted State Senator Frank B. Archer of Bellaire, from the office of lieutenant governor of Ohio. He was never formally elected by the Senate, but merely assumed office when Lieut. Governor Nippert vacated it to accept the Probate Judgeship of Hamilton county.

Acting under the Supreme Court's instructions, Governor Nash has already appointed a lieutenant governor in the person of Harry L. Gordon.

Senator Gordon the newly appointed lieutenant governor is an attorney of Cincinnati, having resided there during the last five years. He was born in Metamora, Ind., April 17, 1860, and received his school and college education in Indiana graduating from De Pauw university at Green Castle. He promised to leave town today. Mrs. Rauck has begun suit for the annulment of her marriage to "Wood."

It is learned that Miss Sawyer flirted with many women and at the time of her marriage to Mrs. Rauck was engaged to another woman.

Many large trees were uprooted and thrown across the streets. The electric light plant was so damaged that the arc lights were shut off and the city was in total darkness.

MARIETTA'S LOSS.

Marietta, Ohio, June 27.—The destruction of property will amount to much more than was first estimated after the cyclone of Wednesday night passed over Marietta. The path averaged about 100 yards and everything along that line was swept clean.

Dozens found themselves without a roof to cover their heads and with showers of debris falling all about them.

Many famous landmarks were devastated. Mound cemetery was stripped in places and the famous mound denuded of trees. The block house on Campus Martius was almost entirely destroyed. The Governor Meigs' weeping willow tree was blown down. Added to the list of manufacturing plants are those of the Marietta Chair company's sawmill, loss about $10,000; Marietta Brewery, loss $1,000; Cisl's brick works, loss $10,000. Eleven houses were entirely destroyed, while 50 others were severely damaged. Hundreds had window panes broken and structural finish defaced. Thousands of trees of all sizes were blown down within the limits of the city, many of them being over two feet in diameter.

It will take many months to rebuild the manufacturing plants and hundreds will be thrown out of employment. Roofers and glass setters are in demand and are drawing double pay.

Half a dozen houses and several barns were overturned in the rural districts. An $8,000 orchard of Capt. R. N. Coles was completely destroyed. The house of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Palmer was demolished and relatives hunted all day for the bodies, when it was found that they were away visiting.

The cloud of scandal which has enveloped General Wood since his retirement from Cuba does not conceal the fact that he is still not only an official but a personal favorite of the President.

All Americans who would like to think well of Mr. Roosevelt cannot fail to be more or less displeased with the evidence produced almost daily that public acts of General Wood meet with his unqualified approval.

When it is remembered that it is the avowed purpose of the president to give General Wood the commanding general of the army and that in pursuance of this plan the secretary of war has been encouraged to humiliate the present lieutenant general, the record of considerable importance to the people at large.

It is apparent from all accounts that the authority of the United States never was misused in any other place or under any other circumstances as it was by General Wood during his command in Cuba. Coupled with the shamelessness of that regime and appropriately enough supplementing it is the attitude of that officer toward Congress and the people, which has been defiant and insolent.

A congressional investigation is necessary to show the sort of company that the President is keeping, but it will not be had unless a Democratic majority shall be returned at the fall elections.

A SATISFACTORY REPLY.

In the course of a speech by Mr. Ball of Texas in the House of Representatives the other day that gentleman was interrupted by Mr. Littlefield of Maine with a pointed question.

"What is the Democratic remedy for trusts?" was the Republican inquiry.

"To place all trust made products on the free list," was the response of the Democrat. "To deny trusts the power of interstate transportation and the use of the mails and to inaugurate an administration which will resort to penal statutes and not injunctions in the prosecutions of trusts."

This may be said to cover the ground pretty thoroughly. Mr. Ball should be a member of the committee on platform in the next national Democratic convention.

High Tariff the Cause of Oppression.
(St. Louis Republic.)

Public sentiment in Illinois, as in other states, is fully aroused to the necessity for tariff revision and trust restriction. Developments of the very recent past have shown the people that the exclusive beneficiaries of a high tariff are the trusts and that the trusts are enabled to oppress the people because of a monopoly of trade created by the tariff. Illinois Democracy may well afford to strive hard for victory on the issue now before the people.

STORIES OF EDWARD VII.

Endeared to His Countrymen by His Manly Career.

MARK TWAIN AMONG HIS ADMIRERS

British Monarch Never Hesitated to Right a Wrong Unconsciously Done—How He Treated an Actress in a Kind Way—Story of a Poker Game With Rothschild.

As their apparent and later as king the human side of Edward VII. has always appealed most strongly to the world outside of his own domain, says the New York Journal.

The king has been endowed with what few rulers by divine right and fewer Englishmen have a sense of humor. Mark Twain discovered this side of his character long ago. There are also a sense of justice, close sympathy with humanity and a disposition not to intrude his royal birth into the ordinary affairs of life which have made him known as a good fellow in the best sense of the term.

There is a story told by James Miller of Oakland, Cal., which illustrates the manly spirit of Edward. In the early days when the prince was a boy Mr. Miller lived in old Porto Bolo, the famous little Scotch pottery town on the south coast of the Firth of Forth. One day when Mr. Miller went out to ride on a little donkey he overtook the prince on the roadside, and out of the meeting grew a dispute which resulted in Mr. Miller being pulled from his mount by Edward. Whereupon the future king of England was soundly thrashed in boyish fashion by the unrelenting compeer.

Edward, however, cherished no resentment against his youthful chastiser, for when both grew up and it came to the prince's ears that Mr. Miller was in financial difficulty the first helping hand was extended to him by the Prince of Wales.

Edward never hesitated to right a wrong unconsciously done. Before he became king he was a familiar figure in Paris, and among his friends was the actress Rejane. Not long ago, when he was at Hamburg, Rejane bowed to the king as he passed and received only a cold stare in response. In some way the oversight was called to the attention of the king, and the Duke of Cambridge was dispatched immediately to find Rejane and bring her into the royal presence. When the actress arrived, the king made humble apology for his absentmindedness and talked in French with her for an hour. When she arose to depart, he said:

"Things have changed, you know, since we last met. I don't know when you come to London her majesty the queen and I will be among the sincere admirers of your performance."

Edward learned to play American poker during his tour of the United States, and thereafter he was fond of indulging in a game of draw with no particular limit. Usually the American ambassador formed one of the party which the king gathered around him for a game. There is a story told of a game in which the king as Prince of Wales and Anselm Rothschild engaged, during which they drove everybody out of the play and boosted each other with $100 bets until there was $40,000 in the jackpot. Rothschild won the pot. But the prince's nerve was so magnificent that Schenck, then American minister to the court of St. James, arose after the showdown and declared he had never seen anything in a long experience in the States to equal it.

"I have the nerve," replied the prince, with a smile, "but you will observe that Rothschild has the jackpot."

This rebuke to an actress who was guilty of undue familiarity with the prince at a bazaar in London in which his aid was invoked is vouched for by a London paper: During his visit to the bazaar the prince stopped at one of the booths and asked for a cup of tea. The actress, emboldened by the opportunity to make some capital for herself, drank from the cup first and then handed it to the prince, saying:

"Now the cup of tea is worth 5 guineas."

The prince gravely paid the price, drank the tea and then, passing the cup back, said:

"Now will you please give me a fresh cup?"

During his tour of America the party stopped at Dwight, Ill., where some shooting was indulged in. After the sport a luncheon was served at the hotel in the town. Among the official party was the then mayor of Chicago. Just before dinner was announced the mayor approached Wales and, slapping him familiarly on the back, exclaimed:

"Well, prince, shall we go upstairs and wash?"

"Certainly," replied the prince suavely.

The prince was strolling in St. James park early one morning when he found he was being followed by a respectable but elderly old lady who he had previously met. He hurried his pace, but the old person soon caught up with him and, courtesying, said:

"I have a grievance, your royal highness."

"Ah, madam," replied the prince, imitating the German accent, "dese is not ze first time I was taken for ze Prince of Wales."

The old lady was nonplused for a moment. Quickly recovering herself, however, she apologized and said:

"I have the honor to have known all the royal family, and if my eyesight were not becoming bad I should not have made such an astonishing error as to take you for the prince."

The prince was a guest at the wedding of the daughter of the Earl of Rosebery in 1890. On the way to the Earl's home Wales' carriage was blocked by the crowd. While it stood in the dense throng two coster girls peered into the window, and, catching sight of the prince, one of the girls cried:

"Chise me bif you don't look nice, Hedward."

The prince uncovered and laughed heartily.

Dr. Parker, a London preacher, denounced the prince's penchant for horse racing and card playing one Sunday. When Wales' attention was called to the fact, he said, with great amusement:

"Friend, let Dr. Parker live his life. I will live mine."

During a tour of Wales upon one occasion the prince visited a printing shop where a linotype machine was in use. Much to the mortification of the proprietor of the shop the operator of the machine was absent when the royal visitor arrived, and he was immediately discharged. Later, the operator, Charles Williams by name, wrote to the prince, expressing his regret that he was not on hand when the prince arrived, and telling of his misfortune, whereupon Wales at once wrote to Williams' employer requesting the man's reinstatement.

On April 3, 1900, an anarchist attempted the life of the prince in the Brussels station. The prince showed his courage upon this occasion. He never lost his presence of mind, and after ascertaining that the princess was unharmed inquired if the pistol had been loaded with ball cartridges. When informed in the affirmative, he smiled and begged that the assailant, who was a mere boy, be not treated too severely.

Edward has worn on his right wrist for years a bracelet which was formerly the property of the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. The bracelet was removed from the latter's body after his execution at Queretaro and presented to the prince by Maximilian's brother, the emperor of Austria.

It was Edward who put the seal of his disapproval upon William Waldorf Astor's social aspirations in England. The prince was invited to a house party and, as usual, the list of guests was handed to him for his approval. Going over the list he came to that of Mr. Astor. He drew his pencil through it.

"Not Mr. Astor," he said quietly. "He bores me."

KHAKI'S GREAT VALUE.

Major H. H. Benham Predicts Big Future For The Army Cloth.

Major H. H. Benham, U. S. A., busied himself the other day at the Grand hotel, in New York, unpacking a quantity of heavy bolero knives which he recently brought from the Philippines. He was about to purchase new uniforms for further service. Asked by a reporter of the New York Tribune what he thought of the new order for khaki for the army, Major Benham said:

"Khaki is the best material yet found for army uniforms. It is very serviceable. I predict that the time will come when civilians will wear it as commonly as they do wooleens. Khaki is made of canvas, crossed with wool. The English and Chinese cloth is just now the best. The English manufacturers have had longer experience than our dealers, because khaki has been used for years in Indian regiments. Khaki is just heavy enough to meet all the requirements for war in tropical countries. It is of a dead grass color and so reduces to a notable degree the liability of a man being shot in battle. Of course the general use of this material will take away from the army its spectacular side, a change which our women will hardly welcome. But war at best is a hard trade, and our men, dressed for hard work, will be able to prosecute it with more success by being sensibly clothed."

"The day of the helmet has passed. The brown slouch hat has proved itself the most serviceable for army headgear. One can sleep in a slouch hat, which means much to the comfort of a soldier. Such a hat keeps the mosquitoes away from one's neck. The slouch hat may not add to the soldier's appearance, but its utility is beyond dispute."

Grasshoppers as Admission Tickets.

The residents of Ephraim, Utah, the agricultural center of San Pete county, where the crops last year were completely ruined by grasshoppers, have adopted a novel method of exterminating the pest, which is again threatening the crops, says a Salt Lake City dispatch to the San Francisco Chronicle. A series of entertainments has been arranged, the admission to which is half a bushel of grasshoppers. The first entertainment—a dance—was held the other night, and seventy-five half bushels of grasshoppers were presented to the ticket man at the door. After the dance the "hoppers" furnished fuel for a bonfire to properly top off the occasion.

Boer Flowers.

At a recent flower show in Paris many new roses were exhibited that bore names indicative of French admiration for the Boers, says the New York Evening World. Louis Botha was a pure white, with drooping petals that suggested a chrysanthemum. Boer Courage was a flaming black red. Majuba was a sulphurous yellow and Paul Kruger was a moss rose of claret color.

Lightning's Odd Effect on a Horse

James Montgomery's horse was struck by lightning a few days ago at Gloucester, R. I. It was not killed, but since the storm if a hand is placed on the animal's back he will drop to the ground, says the Philadelphia Record. If the harness is put on, the horse will fall like a shot.

War on Trailing Skirts.

War against trailing skirts is being actively conducted in some places on the continent, says Pearson's Weekly. In parts of Switzerland wearers of these long garments are fined, and in Prussia some public gardens are closed to those whose dresses have even quite moderate trains.

HANNA HASH THE THING

Corned Beef Dainty Promises to Be the Administration Dish.

ALL THE RAGE IN WASHINGTON.

Ohio Senator's Breakfast to the President Has Set a Fashion For Entertaining in the Latest Mode. Refresco De Pina and Other Cuban Dishes Popular With Roosevelt.

Corn beef hash bids fair to be the administration dish, says a Washington dispatch to the Chicago Record-Herald. If one would entertain a statesman these days at luncheon or breakfast, one of the dishes should be the homely but nourishing corn beef hash. Senator Hanna introduced this delicacy to his conferees at a breakfast given to President Roosevelt, and its fame went through the land. Senator Hanna's chef prepares his hash according to the following recipe:

Equal parts of boiled prime corn beef and potatoes are prepared. The beef is chopped as fine as possible, the soft, mealy potatoes are cut into tiny cubes. A small onion is minced to add flavor to the mass, and the dishes are rubbed with a head of garlic. Another garlic head is wrapped in a piece of the fat and thrown into the center of the mass. The whole is then mixed, thoroughly and nicely browned in a big skillet or frying pan. During this operation disks of Bermuda onions, cut so that each round shows every ring of the onion, are thrown into a deep dish of pure lard and browned delicately. When these disks are crisp, they are used to garnish the edge of the platter, and the hash is served garnished with parsley or herbs and the usual condiment is a squeeze of a lemon.

Prepared in this way corn beef hash is said to be very dainty and appetizing. It is a survival of the days when the beef scandal agitated the country. A coterie of army officers first prepared the dish for Senator Hanna, using canned corn beef for a basis. It was served as a convincing argument that canned corn beef was not only nourishing, but palatable. Senator Hanna fixed up a dish according to the army recipe and served it to President Roosevelt as a delicate reminder of his rough rider days. Since then it has taken vogue, and now it is the proper thing to bring on a dish of corn beef hash, a la Hanna whenever one wishes to entertain big people.

The Spanish-American war is also responsible for a new summer dainty. It is known as refresco de pina. A sufficient number of pineapples are selected and peeled. With a strong silver fork the pulp is then drawn away from the core. Care should be taken that the pineapple is shredded very finely. A deep cut glass dish is then taken, and layers of finely cracked ice and pineapple are placed therein. Powdered sugar is sprinkled over the dish, and then the juice of two lemons to each pineapple is squeezed over all. A dash of rum may be effectively added at the moment of squeezing the lemons if the taste delights in that flavor. The dainty should be served before the ice melts and may be brought in in place of a water ice or ice cream. It is also a cooling and refreshing dainty to offer while lounging around on the porticoes during a sweltering day. This is a favorite Cuban refreshment, and returning "advance guards of civilization" are loud in its praise.

President Roosevelt and General Wood are fond of Cuban dishes, and while they were keeping bachelor hall at the White House they gave several quiet but jolly little breakfasts. Remembering Senator Hanna's lavish praise of refresco de pina, they introduced this dainty in lieu of fruit to begin the morning meal. They also had hot tamales and tortillas. Senator Lodge was invited to one of these early feasts, and the genial speaker of the house was also one of the guests. The president is fond of watercress and also likes a masticum salad for his breakfast. Unlike many men of martial instincts, he does not indulge in a "tonic" of any description before his breakfast. He eats rather a hearty meal for the first in the day and invariably drinks coffee. At luncheon the president always drinks claret, and sometimes, if he has a guest, he adds sauterne. He takes a bitters before luncheon, and this is the first invigorator of the day.

Amateur cooking is quite the rage since Senator Hanna set the ball rolling by his corn beef hash breakfast. Every legislator and official now invites his special friend to the suburban clubs and a dish is prepared according to the host's favorite recipe. Some quote the president on the preparation of fish and game in the camp, and it is said that the president's new book, soon to be issued, contains some recipes on these interesting topics. People in Washington recall the days told of by the oldest inhabitant when Henry Clay and Daniel Webster and the giants of that period met at Hancock's and vied with each other in preparing Lullianian repasts. President Harrison was famous for a salad recipe, and President Cleveland achieved fame as the originator of the best sherry cobbler ever imbibed in Washington.

But What of the Boer?

A cheer for the Briton who was the fight, A crown for the king, a plume to the knight, And a hand to the hearty yeoman; A cheer to the Briton who wins, but yields The fields to the men and the men to the fields, For he is a generous foe.

But a greater cheer for the broken Boer, Who stood to his guns when defeat was sure And the world looked on unheeding; Who found in the courts of the earth no friend, Yet struggled on to the bitter end, Breathless, beaten and bleeding.

Aye, a cheer goes up for the men who win, And the drum and the cannon long shall din, Their riotous celebrations, But a deeper cheer for the men who choose In liberty's cause to fight and lose, For of such is the hope of nations. —Edmund Vance Cooke in Chicago Journal.

PARTITION OF AFRICA.

England's Share the Most Valuable on the Dark Continent.

By the surrender of the Boers England gets an undisputed title to 107,465 square miles of new territory, the area being 11,000 square miles greater than that of the state of California, says the Chicago Record-Herald. This, however, is only a small part of the British South African possessions, which now contain perhaps 900,000 square miles, but the tract is one of the most valuable on the continent, and its acquisition does away with a dividing barrier that might prove a formidable obstacle in some political emergency.

Throughout Africa the English holdings and "spheres" now aggregate more than 3,000,000 square miles and exceed the continuous continental territory of the United States. Of the other European nations France has claims about as vast, but some 2,000,000 square miles of her African territory are in the desert of Sahara, and her sovereignty over this sandy waste is poorly established.

Germany and Portugal have each about 900,000 square miles, and so has Belgium if the Congo Free State be marked off to that country. Spanish Africa consists of some 252,000 square miles, Italian Africa of 88,000. Tripoli, which is tributary to Turkey, comes near to 400,000 square miles.

England has an advantage not only in the size of her possessions, but in their character. She has more territory than any other nation that is habitable for white men and controls what are now the greatest diamond fields and gold regions in the world. She has also a more direct control over the districts' credited to her than have most of the other countries over their districts. But on all the claims there are large numbers of natives who have still to be reckoned with. The partition has been exclusively a European affair.

OUR WOMEN THEIR MODELS

Native Filipino Women Imitating Army Officers in Dress and Manners.

An army officer who has just returned from the Philippines says the native women are imitating the American women, schoolteachers and wives of army officers, in the matter of dress, personal adornment and manners. During the last year a great change in this nature has been observed among the native women who have been thrown into contact with the Americans, says the New York Tribune. The Philippine women now insist not only upon having more clothes, but better clothes, and the result is a marked improvement in their average personal appearance. A year and a half ago this officer passed through a village in Luzon. In the house where he lodged was a girl of ten or twelve years who smoked big black cigars and apparently enjoyed them. Visiting the same village a few months ago, the officer called to see his friends, the native family. He found the girl, now a little larger, of course, and also very much better dressed.

"You are not smoking, I see," he said to her.

"No, senor."

"Well, try one of these," he said, offering her his cigar case.

"No, thank you, senor," replied the girl in fair English. "Me no smoke now. Americano women no smoke."

NEW WASHINGTON STYLE.

Senator William E. Mason as a Glass of Fashion.

The belt vest or vest belt of which Senator William E. Mason is the originator is the new style in waistcoats peculiarly adapted to stout people and to very warm weather, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post. Like so many of those nice things that we are told about, it is "within the reach of all."

These directions might suffice: Take an old vest—any closet will furnish one—and with a pair of sharp shears bit it just above the second button from the bottom. In wearing draw it tightly in front and either button or buckle it in the back. The result is a waistcoat which is at the same time a belt. It conceals the suspender button and the upper seam of the trousers and really fills a long felt want. Washington seldom leads in fashions, but it may do so this time.

Wireless Telegraphy For Alaska.

Government stations on the mainland of Alaska are to be connected by wireless telegraphy, according to a contract let by the board appointed by the chief signal officer of the army to the Marconi company. The station will be in operation by the middle of October, and ultimate communication with the state of Washington is expected, thus putting Alaska for the first time in direct communication with the rest of the world.

FUTURE OF ELECTRICITY

Will Accomplish Undreamed of Feats, Experts Declare.

HUMAN LABORS TO BE LIGHTENED

Engineers Claim That Electricity
Will Heat Houses, Cook Food and Run All Railway Trains—Speed of Three Miles a Minute Predicted for Passenger Travel.

Passenger trains at 150 miles an hour, heating houses from a power station miles away, household cooking by electricity, production of costly chemicals by electrical processes simplifying and ennobling human labor, immense saving in cost and production of many commodities—these are some of the things prophesied by members of the Institute of Electrical Engineers during their recent convention at Great Barrington, Mass., says the New York World.

"Produce the capital, and we will produce the results," is their cry. Speaking the other day of the possibilities of electricity, President Steinmetz said:

"The field is practically limitless. Thus far merely the surface has been scratched. Things now regarded as marvels will be the simplest propositions of the future. Heating and cooking by electricity are already solved. The only thing that stands in the way is the cost. The cheapening will come later."

Oberlin Smith, ex-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, said:

"Whenever any capitalist will produce the money, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will stand ready to run trains between New York and Philadelphia or New York and Boston at from 120 to 180 miles an hour."

"As far as the mere process is concerned heating and cooking by electricity are trivialities. It is perfectly practicable to heat the largest building or broil the largest steak by this means. The only objection so far is the high cost, but in spite of this it is becoming more common every year. Eighty per cent of the energy of fuel is wasted at present. It goes up the flues. Whenever this wasted energy can be turned into electricity the revolution will come. All heating, cooking and lighting will eventually be done by electricity."

"All the railroads now run by steam will be operated by electricity. As a conservative estimate, I should say that this would happen by the end of the century. It might happen within ten years. I firmly believe a new type of long distance high speed engine will come within twenty-five years, and I look to see the trip from New York to Philadelphia made in from a half to three-quarters of an hour."

Professor Parker of Columbia college was also among the conservatives in his predictions for the future. "I believe a great many things will eventually be done by electricity that are now performed by steam," he said. "When that time will come, I do not care to say. Trains may be run by electricity. Cooking, heating and a hundred other things are perfectly feasible and will come in good time. The tremendous possibilities of Niagara falls as a source of power cannot be overestimated. It is capable of doing a great deal that has been deemed impossible in the past."

A. B. See of the electrical engineers was enthusiastic in his predictions.

"The future of electricity is limitless," he said. "Just look at the tremendous development of the past decade. Where there was one trolley line then there are a thousand now. Years ago in England a doting man prophesied that the time would come when we would turn on a tap and have our light. Edison turned on the tap, and we had it."

"First the problem was all light. Then it was all power. Now it is all speed and efficiency combined with cheapness. Heating and cooking is a simple proposition, provided we have proper power stations near at hand." Several of the members were inclined to believe that if a power station such as Niagara were at the doors of New York all steam would be done away with.

BOER FORCES IN THE WAR.
Commandant Kemp Says There Were 50,000 In the Beginning.

A dispatch from Kimberley, Griqualand West, dated Monday, June 16, to the Washington Star, says: Commandant Kemp, General Delarey's lieutenant, who surrendered at Mafeking June 11, has arrived here. In an interview the other day he gave some interesting figures regarding the war. He said that about 50,000 Boers were in the field at the outset and that only 1,500 out of 5,000 men available fought at Colenso, where the Boer losses were not heavy. At Spion Kop, where the British suffered so much, the Boers had only fifty-three men killed. In one of the fights outside Ladysmith the Boers had fifty-six men killed and over 100 wounded. Their losses were heavier at Bransburg and Vlakfontein.

The Boers were often worried by the British shrapnel and lyddite fire, but when entrenched they did not fear the shells. Members of the Boer forces of old managed to get into Johannesburg, Krugersdorp and Pretoria, procuring valuable information, and frequently crossed the bio-house lines at night. Commandant Kemp did not allow the Boers of his command to wear khaki, the British uniform.

MANILLA

arrangement for the surrender of the city.

"It was not my business to communicate to any but the commanding general," Admiral Dewey remarked. "I had communicated to General Merritt. The arrangement was simply for the purpose of taking the city without needless loss of life. General Jaudenes was the intermediary between us and the Spanish Governor General. It was fully understood among my squadron that there was to be no resistance by the city and I supposed until later that it was known in the army."

"I continued all my preparations for battle however up to the last moment for we did not altogether trust the Spaniards. General Merritt did not trust the arrangement and my flag lieutenant, Brumby, had the same feeling. I learned afterwards that they came very near firing upon my ships from the city. One Spanish officer in charge of one of the ten-inch guns wanted to fire. They had some conversation about it. One of the Spaniards said: 'They won't dare bombard this city with so small a fleet.' But one of the monitors, the Monterey, was lying with her guns trained on the city. Another of the Spaniards spoke up and said: 'Any one that is such a fool as to cross the ocean in a thing like that would do anything.' So I think it is probable that the presence of the Monterey saved us from the necessity of bombarding the city."

Mr. Patterson attempted to secure an admission from Admiral Dewey that Aguinaldo had issued a proclamation declaring for independence before the American fleet left Hong Kong and that he had been aiming for independence from the first. The Admiral said he knew of no such proclamation. It would have been impossible for him to have circulated it in the Philippines until the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

"We captured a hand printing press at Cavite and I gave it to Aguinaldo. He may have used that press for the printing of circulars, but the only proclamation of which I have any knowledge was that of July 15th of which he sent me a copy."

Admiral Dewey gave it as his opinion that Aguinaldo went to Manila for the sole purpose of gain.

MINIATURE

ENGINE BUILT BY NEWARK MAN,
CHAS. T. FITZHUGH.

The Locomotive Works Well and is to be Taken to a Columbus Park Soon.

Mr. Charles T. Fitzhugh, a machinist employed at the plant of the Newark Meat Tendering Company in the East End, has built a miniature locomotive of five horse power weighing 1000 pounds. He has been working on this machine since February, 1900, and it is the work of his own hands.

It is designed to be used as a park attraction to draw a train of small cars. Mr. Fitzhugh has already received an offer from the management of Minerva Park located near Columbus, and as soon as some minor details of the engine are attended to he will take it to that resort. A small track of probably 200 feet has been laid in the alley between Harrison and Holady streets, running from Third nearly to Fourth street, where the machine has been tested.

The locomotive is a beauty and has attracted much attention and favorable comment from those who have seen it working.

UP THE PANAMA CANAL

Exploring the Big Ditch in a Naphtha Launch.

BANKS LINED WITH MACHINERY.

Graphic Account of a Trip to View the Condition of the Waterway Undertaken by Captain William Conales of New York—Queer Foundation of De Lesseps' Palace.

A trip through part of the Panama canal in a naphtha launch was a feat accomplished recently by a party of amateur explorers under the guidance of Captain William Conales of New York.

"It was a great canal trip and one I did not expect to take," said Captain Conales the other day to a reporter of the New York Times. "I saw more queer sights than we ever set down in the reports made to the governments of the various countries interested in the isthmian canal problem. We saw wild natives, crocodiles, and in the jungle on either side of the canal the tropical growth was just crowded with cranes and large herons, all of beautiful plumage."

"The way we came to make the trip was peculiar. Fifty years ago I went on a journey around Cape Horn to San Francisco. We went in a clipper, and it took over three months. I thought on the fiftieth anniversary of that trip that I would go down and cross the isthmus and then come up to San Francisco. I went on the steamer Grizaba in April, and when we got to Colon I met some young fellows, and in talking about sea trips one of them said: 'Why, there is an old naphtha launch belonging to Wardlaw. Say we rig it up and take a trip up the Panama canal.'"

"I know something about naphtha launches because I had been tinkering around that kind of machinery for years. We got out the launch and, after tussling around for a couple of hours, got it working. Then the question came as to who were to make up the party. Robert Wilcox, who is engaged in business in Colon, offered to go. His business is trading with the Indians. He knows their jargon like a book. Henry M. Shearer, who is in business in Call, Colombia, was also of the party. Captain Smith of the Orizaba also wanted to join the expedition. Then we took along the purser, Mr. Spencer, and he took along half a ton of ice and many other good things."

"The first thing we had to do was to go and see the alcalde of the district about the trip, because we were told that Indians near the end of the canal were very wild. The alcalde told us we had better carry on our launch the American and English flags. We rigged the American flag at the stern and the English flag at the bow and at 10 o'clock one pleasant morning started from Colon."

"I forgot one member of the crew. He was a big Jamaica darty 6 feet 3 inches. Before we got through the journey he was the most valuable of the crew. Captain Smith took the helm, and Wilcox looked after the engine, and I kept a weather eye out. Around a small point not far from Colon there is the mouth of the Chagres river, which crosses and recrosses the canal. It was at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 18th of April when we rounded the point which has been made partly solid ground by hundreds of tons of good machinery thrown in there to make land. Poor old man De Lesseps never knew how he was being fooled."

"Cocoanut trees in plenty were growing out of the soil heaped up on the broken machinery, and in plain sight was what all the people down there call 'De Lesseps' Palace.' I never saw such queer foundation for a palace in all my life. There were boilers, hoisting engines, locomotives and valuable machinery worth hundreds and thousands of dollars thrown in a heap to make a foundation for a house. Imagine a solid structure of wood, three stories in height, with fifty rooms, and so built that the large windows and doors could be opened to let the breezes blow through; large verandas, and all around banana and cocoanut trees, and you have in your mind the picture which we saw."

"We visited the De Lesseps mansion. It was in charge of a keeper, and he showed us the large offices, all the silverware, the books and furniture and the household things just as they were left nineteen years ago by the owner. The mouth of the Panama canal is about half a mile in width, and on either shore there is low shrubbery. We found a depth of over twenty feet of water at this point. On both banks could be seen all kinds of derricks and machinery lying partly in the water. "As we journeyed up the river in the launch the tropical trees met overhead, and it was not long before we were in the jungle. Banana plantations could be seen about a mile apart. The first Indians we met were friendly, and they talked to Mr. Wilcox in their Spanish-Indian jargon."

"We came to places in the canal where the banks had been washed down so that there was only a depth of a foot of water. Our Jamaica darty would go overboard, put his shoulder against the stern of the launch and shove it across the sandbar 200 or 300 feet. Then he came in handy when we wanted to go ashore. He would pick us up in his arms one after another and wade ashore without any apparent effort."

"As we went up the river the Indians became more wild. They would peer out from the jungle and as soon as they saw us would scatter as if we were going to kill them. One strange thing was that the women never ran."

RAILWAY AFFAIRS

PENNSY'S CONTRACT WITH POS-TAL IS ANNOUNCED.

Lines East First, Perhaps West Later.
A B. & O. Inspection Party—Local and General Notes.

Philadelphia, June 27—First Vice President John P. Green of the Pennsylvania railroad, now confirms the statement that the directors of the company, at their meeting Wednesday approved the agreement whereby the Postal Telegraph Company will control the telegraph service of the lines of the Pennsylvania east of Pittsburg and Erie for 15 years.

Captain Green stated that it now remains for the directors of the Postal company to ratify the contract. He further stated that as soon as the present contract between the Pennsylvania railroad and the Western Union Telegraph Company, affecting the lines west of Pittsburg and Erie expires, a contract will be made with the Postal company similar to the one approved this week.

It is said that the contract for the western lines will not expire for several years. The eastern contract has already expired and the Western Union Company has been given six months to remove its poles and wires from the railroad company's property. This gives the Postal from the Western Union 5000 offices and telegraph lines along 4,745 miles of railroads.

B. & O. Inspection Coming.
The higher operating officials of the B. & O. will start on an inspection trip over the system Saturday. L. G. Haas, general superintendent, returned from Baltimore headquarters and says that he expects President L. F. Loree, General Manager G. L. Potter, T. J. Foley, assistant to the general manager, and others here Saturday. They will go directly from Pittsburg to Cleveland, where Sunday will be spent. On the following day, they will start on an inspection of several days. —Today's Pittsburg Post.

AID IN THE USE OF X RAYS.

Paraffin Shield Found to Prevent Burning of the Skin.

Dr. J. Mount Bleyer of New York announces a discovery regarding the use of X rays that does away with the injurious effects of a prolonged application of the rays. He has found, according to the New York Tribune, that a paraffin coating one eighth of an inch in thickness which is applied to that part of the person on which the rays are directed prevents burns. Prolonged application of the X rays, such as is necessary in treatment of cancer and tuberculosis, has been found to result in so called virulent burns. Because these burns do not develop till several days after the application it has been a theory that they are due to secondary infection and that the rays drive dust floating in the air into the skin of the patient. These particles carry inoculation.

Acting on this theory, Dr. Bleyer, by experiment, found that paraffin would catch and hold the virulent particles which were carried by the X rays.

Various other efforts have been made to prevent irritation from the atmospheric impact produced by the Rontgen discharge. An aluminum screen has been often employed. But the disadvantage of this and similar devices is that a screen of such material robs the rays of three-fourths of their efficiency. The paraffin coating permits the uninterrupted current, but stops the flow of alien particles.

The book is the story of a college graduate who went into the kitchen of a helpless family and restored order and inspired everybody to work and help. Another, Miss Meyer has done this much in truth for a Topeka family and yet has found time to complete her college course.

A Large Quantity of Canned Goods, Butcher Knives and Pennies Stolen from Store.

Burglars entered the grocery and meat market of C. C. Metz and Brother on East Main street Thursday night and secured a large amount of canned goods, etc. Entrance was gained by prying the back door open with a pick, which was taken from the slaughter house. It was later found in the store. The burglars took a number of butcher knives, quite an amount of canned goods, such as corn, tomatoes and beans and 75 cents in pennies. There is no clue to the thieves, but Friday morning a basket containing a number of empty cans was found in the alley in the rear of the grocery and the police may be able to track the thieves by the goods stolen.

BARBED WIRE PHONE LINES

Montana Ranchmen Making a General Use of the Fences.

"They are inaugurating a telephone exchange in Fort Benton," said a northern Montana man recently to a reporter of the Butte Inter Mountain, "that will put the embryo telephone companies entirely in the shade."

"Fort Benton's latest effort is a barbed wire telephone communication. Being by instinct and association cow people, they resented the genesis of the barbed wire, and when it was discovered that it was one of the evils that came with the railroad and threw the cowpuncher, the bull train and the river steamer out of the game, they decided to take a material view of the situation, and the result is that they are preparing to have a telephone exchange which will take in every ranch from the Missouri river north to the Canadian line and south to the Highwood mountains.

"Among the duties of the operator at the toll station, which will be situated at Benton, will be calling the ranchers on the various creeks in the morning, notifying them when the trains are twelve or fourteen hours late and giving the sheepmen the latest report of the weather bureau, so that they may be ready during lambing time for the storms which are so destructive in that section.

"Ranches are strung all along the line from Benton up Shonkin creek to the mountains, and with a short addition to the fences, which run continuously, the line will be carried across the Highwood mountains near old Jack Connolly's ranch at Eagle Head to the thickly populated Highwood district and to the Judith basin.

"When the line is finished, the ranchman in northern Montana will only have to step to the phone to be in connection with every city in the state. On emergency cases he can call a physician or a minister, as the case requires. The latter is of particular importance in the Bear Paw and Little Rocky region, as some men down there have still the old time habit of dying in their boots, and even telephonic connection with a sky pilot is a desirable modern convenience."

When a bunch of beef steers stampedes and goes through the barbed wire, central will know that the line is in need of repair and that the beef steers of the square outfit are losing flesh by the pound.

MADE DOLLS FOR A DUKE.

Philadelphia Girl Has an Order From Germany.

Miss Virginia McDowell of Philadelphia is making paper dolls for the two granddaughters of the present Grand Duke of Luxembourg, says the Philadelphia Times. Thirty of the dolls, each one differently dressed, were recently sent to Castle Koenigstein, near Wiesbaden, where the children, about eight and ten years old, make their home.

A friend of Miss McDowell, an artist, is a close friend of the children's mother, and a year ago last Christmas the artist presented them with several dolls which had been made and dressed by the Philadelphia girl.

So delighted were they that their mother, fearing the evil effects of too much indulgence in such innocent pleasure, allowed the children to play with them only occasionally. The fragile bits of pasteboard and tissue paper soon wore out, and then a letter all gorgeous with heraldic blazonry was sent to Miss McDowell asking her to make thirty of the dolls and send them as soon as possible to Castle Koenigstein.

Miss McDowell set to work immediately, and in a short while the dainty pieces of handiwork were completed. Each doll was dressed differently in costumes for various times of day—street gowns, dinner dress, ball gowns, hunting jackets and others for similar occasions. In several of the dresses the national colors of the duchy, yellow and blue, were judiciously and artistically combined.

Miss McDowell is well known in Philadelphia's younger set. She makes her home during the winter with her aunt, Miss Jones. She will spend this summer at Wildwood. She is a clever artist and has made a specialty of paper dolls.

GO TO SEA IN COFFINS.

Club Formed to Sail the Caskets of a Vanished Factory.

An aquatic club with a fleet of coffins for boats is the newest organization in Shelburne Falls, Mass., says the New York World. The coffins, which are made of wood and are lined, are reminders of a coffin manufactory to which citizens were invited to subscribe two years ago.

The concern recently left town, first disposing of sundry souvenirs of its handiwork for 25 cents apiece. Some one discovered the nautical qualities of the coffins, and the formation of a boat club, the first in the history of the town, followed.

Draw For Partners.

Parisian hostesses have invented a new method of dealing with one of the principal difficulties incident to dinner parties, that of pairing off the guests, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. On arriving in the drawing room the guests find two baskets of flowers. Hidden in the blossoms are numbered tickets. The men are requested to shut their eyes, put a hand into one basket adorned with forget-me-nots or some other blue flower and pull out a card. The ladies perform a like ceremony, drawing their tickets from a bower of pink blossoms, generally roses. The corresponding numbers then look for each other and having sorted themselves out, pair off and go to dinner.

LIGHTNING

Cut a Queer Freak in This Knox County Residence on Wednesday Afternoon.

(Mt. Vernon Banner.)

Lightning cut a very queer freak at the home of Mrs. Eliza Myers in Milford township Wednesday afternoon during the storm and several members of the household had a very narrow escape from perhaps being killed. A bolt of lightning entered the east door of the kitchen, ran up the side of the door to the ceiling of the room, passed over the heads of several persons in the kitchen and then down the side of the west door. The bolt of lightning then struck the ground and killed three chickens that were feeding near the door. The members of the household were badly frightened but felt no effects from the lightning.

HEILPRIN'S DISCOVERIES.

Scientist Says Mont Pelee's Height Is Unchanged.

George Kennan the correspondent who climbed, together with Professor Angelo Heilprin and George Varian, the artist, to the summit of Mont Pelee and looked down into the crater, said the other day to a reporter of the New York World on their return from the islands of Martinique and St. Vincent:

"I have seen the mountain in many different ways, from all sides, on many days, at all distances, and at every view I have seen it different. I would not venture to make any prophecy about the future of the volcano."

Professor Heilprin, who also accompanied the Peary relief expedition in 1892, ascended after enormous difficulty to the edge of the new crater of Pelee. He went so near that he dropped pebbles into the white hot mass beneath.

"Running north and south," says the professor of geology and geography, "the new crater is a crevasse expanding into a bowl. The crevasse almost rifted the mountain. As it runs transversely to the old crater, it might be termed a gash. From its volcanic matter has been bursting freely."

"The spectacle gave a conception of what is taking place inside the earth far below there was a hissing of steam like a thousand locomotives, interrupted by violent detonations. The output of the crater while we were there was steam. No molten matter flowed over the lip."

"Observations with the aneroid barometer proved that the height of Mont Pelee had not been changed. Mont Pelee has erupted no real lava. There has been no cataclysm, and there have been no serious topographical changes. I could see down about 150 or 200 feet, but noinder cone was visible. I believe, however, that the crater is much deeper, and the volcano may continue for some time to be quietly active."

"Our ascent accurately located the new crevasse. It determined for certainties other points which have been enumerated and that Mont Pelee did not blow its head off. While the new eruption on Martinique was not of immediate menace, volcanic forces seem to be on the increase in the Caribbean region, and their phenomena are far from local. The connection between Pelee and La Soufriere is deep seated. There is a long volcanic circuit through the Caribbean gulf region."

AN ODD CAVALCADE.

Gold Laced Rider Divides Honors With the President.

Usually President Roosevelt can ride from one end of Pennsylvania avenue, in Washington, to the other without awakening the least curiosity from the passing public since they are so accustomed to seeing him mounted for riding, says the New York Times. However, he unconsciously attracted a great deal of attention as he headed a curious cavalcade coming down Pennsylvania avenue the other day.

First was the president returning from a ride in the country. He was followed by Governor General Wood, his house guest. Behind General Wood came the orderly who always rides with the president, and after him came a glittering individual mistaken for a newly arrived dignitary from some foreign country whose gold lace and scarlet coats are worn by others than the Marine band. Gold braid almost covered his crimson jacket, a hat as glorious sat upon his head, and a glittering sword swung from his side. Evidently the president was taking another representative of a faraway country for one of his strenuous rides. People halted along the walk to gaze upon the gay individual, who gazed in vulgar curiosity after the president.

The party turned into the White House grounds, the president first, followed by General Wood, then the orderly. The scarlet coated rider stopped and looked up the driveway, but did not enter. The people took it for granted that the president had forgotten his guest and walked along to take a closer view of his majesty. Just then he set a pair of clumsy heels into his horse and rode slothfully down the avenue, leaving the people to discover that they had been following an advertisement for a new cigarette just come to town.

Smoking Carriages For Ladies.
On the continent smoking is growing so rapidly in favor among the fair sex that on some of the Belgian railroads smoking apartments are to be provided exclusively for women, says London Health. This result has been brought about through a young lady finding herself the object of much protest on her producing a cigarette in an ordinary compartment reserved for ladies. The young lady has taken action to compel all the Belgian companies to provide smoking accommodations for ladies.

Boers Welcomed to the Northwest.
The arrival of a little party of Boers in Minneapolis is a rest of homes in the northwest gives ground for the hope that there will be more to follow, says the Minneapolis Times. Of the sturdy manhood of the Dutch farmers of South Africa the world has had ample evidence in the last three years, and as many of them as may come to the northwest will be gladly welcomed.

A New Sword Metal.
The Austrian government has, it is said, decided to arm several cavalry regiments with swords made of a new metal named magnalium, which is asserted, says the London Globe, to combine the lightness of aluminum with the strength and flexibility of steel.

LUCKY DOGS

[Copyright, 1932, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

It happened in a most unconventional way. There had been a rough and tumble fight between two dogs, and the little fox terrier had come out of the scrimmage badly demoralized. Its shoulder was torn and bleeding, and the girl was on the verge of tears.

Jack had always been a lover of animals, and, picking up the pup, for it was little else, he walked into a drug store and soon had the wound all fixed up, and the pup's apology for a tail was wagging approval.

Jack had barely looked at the girl, but now that his task was done he turned toward her and felt more than rewarded by the warmth of her thanks. There was something about her that captured him then and there. She was anxious to get home with her small invalid as soon as possible, and at her request Jack called a cab.

"I do not know how to thank you, Mr.—"

"Jack Gardner, at your service," he replied, helping her into the cab.

"Mr. Gardner, I wish Bobs could say what he thinks," and she patted the pup and smiled. (Lucky pup.)

"Perhaps I might be permitted to call and inquire for Bobs some day, Miss"—

There was a quick, shy glance from a pair of pretty eyes.

"Mr. Gardner, please tell the cabman to drive me home." And a moment later a card was in Jack's hand, the cabby instructed, and the girl and the pup had passed from the man's vision.

During the next few days Jack worried about that pup. He was afraid some complication might develop, and if anything happened to Bobs he could just see those beautiful eyes, and—well, it is a physician's duty not to neglect his patients.

It took that pup a long time to recover its normal condition. Bobs is the first and only real patient Jack had ever had—you see, he is a stockbroker and not a doctor, but that is another story.

About a month after the accident he suggested to Miss Templeton that a little drive along Riverside would be very beneficial to Bobs, provided, of course, that she could make it convenient to be in attendance in case of any unforeseen contingencies. They had both become very devoted to Bobs, and while there was perhaps a little jealousy—purely professional—Jack hardly cared to take the responsibility of looking after him without the valuable assistance of the chief nurse.

"It was a glorious autumn" afternoon when he steered his auto up to the new familiar door. Never did a patient look so absolutely well, and the little stump of a tail was working overtime. One car was cocked up and one eye was half closed, as much as to say, "Hello, there, doctor; I'm on to your game, but I won't give it away!"

And the nurse, well, she was simply a vision of beauty, radiant with the brightness of the day and smiling with the joyousness of youth.

On consultation it was decided to put Bobs between them, but this was evidently not in accordance with his ideas of decorum—sagacious dog—and finally matters were compromised by letting him sit on Miss Templeton's lap, whereby he secured a much better view of the surroundings and enabled Jack to operate the auto and attend to some other incidental matters with far greater comfort.

The Hudson had never looked more beautiful than on that sunny afternoon. The young fellow felt as strong and vigorous as some of those sturdy little tugs which were steaming up and down to the docks, carrying in their wake ten or twenty barges, each laden with the necessary materials for the upbuilding of a mighty city.

Bobs had behaved remarkably well, but he was getting a little noisy, and they decided to give the auto a rest and allow the patient to have some mild exercise. He was the healthiest looking sick dog ever seen. Jack trembled for some unsuspecting sparrows that were holding a noisy convention at a bend in the road, but Bobs' excited barking apposed them of their danger, and they and Bobs disappeared in a cloud of dust.

Jack and Miss Templeton were alone. The temptation was more than he could stand. His hand slipped over hers.

"Nellie," he whispered, "Bobs doesn't need me any more, but I wonder if some one would give me a 50 per cent interest in him?"

She raised her glorious eyes, so full of love and happiness, until they met his own. Then their lips sealed the contract, and Jack knew that the best and safest investment of his life had been consummated.

Miss Templeton was still smiling up into his face when Bobs made a sudden leap into the auto and, taking in the situation at a glance, gave a short, satisfied bark, which in the language of canines meant, "God bless you, my two beloved and joint owners!"

DEAD WIFE

Gave the Command and the Maniac Roasted His Son Alive in an Oven.

Marlboro, Mass., June 27.—John Cullinane built a kitchen fire yesterday and, calling his seven-year-old son Charley down stairs, put him in the oven and shut the door. After filling the stove Cullinane turned on the draughts and then started for the parochial residence of the Immaculate Conception parish and told Father Sullivan, what he had done.

Little Charley's agonizing screams aroused an older brother, who rescued him, but not until he had been in the oven half an hour. The boy was horribly burned about the legs and abdomen, and is not expected to recover.

Cullinane was found at 8 o'clock in the house of a friend and was arrested. He said that his wife, who died four years ago, had been visiting him daily. He said that yesterday she appeared and began to tap on the head of his bed. When he placed his ear against the boards to listen he heard her repeat many times, "Charley is dead; burn him."

Cullinane was placed in a padded cell.

We are going to sell tickets at less than half fare this summer so as to enable people of moderate means to spend their vacations in glorious Colorado.

It is by no means a country of high prices. Our handbook tells all about the hotels, boarding-houses and ranches, their prices, names and addresses of the proprietors, attractions within reach, rates for livery, the fishing and hunting, charges for guides, etc. Ask for a copy. No charge. And with the book we will enclose a circular telling about the railroad ticket rates and trains. It takes only one night on the road to go from Chicago to Colorado. There is no place in the world like Colorado for beauty of mountain scenery and perfection of climate—it is ideal. I have never known anyone to return from Colorado disappointed. Where could you find a more delightful place to spend your vacation?

Send for a handbook to P. S. Eustis, Passenger Traffic Mgr., C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A Timely List of Remedies.
Nothing is better to allay the itching of prickly heat or hives than strong borax water. A dose of sulphur taken twice a week will assist in driving eruptions of any kind away.
Kerosene oil will hold mosquitoes at bay. The odor is not noticeable after a few minutes, and children especially are much relieved by its use.
Fruit stains may be removed from the hands by washing in clear water, then holding over the fumes of a burning match.
Chronic diarrhea is cured by drinking orange peel tea. Sweeten with loaf sugar and use as a common drink for twenty-four hours or more.
A simple and effective remedy for liver poisoning is said to be sweet spirits of niter. Bathe the affected parts two or three times during the day, and the next morning scarcely any trace of the poison will remain.
A cloth wet in cold water and laid on the back of the neck is a cure for sleeplessness. Fold a towel smoothly over it, and very often it will quiet a weary brain and soothe the brain better than an opiate. It is particularly useful in case of a dull headache.

Couches and Nerves.
"Couches have saved more minds and nervous systems than all the doctors and medicines put together," said a familiar authority on house furnishing to the Philadelphia North American.
"It is the best refuge that the overworked housekeeper has, did she but know it, and the only fault I have to find with women is that as a rule they do not use their couches half enough."
"I am not talking about these yard and a half contrivances that are as tough as a rhinoceros' hide. What I mean is a broad, comfortable couch that is soft and luxurious and on which a woman may nestle among the pillows and be comfortable. Every room should have one. When distracted by the infinite cares of the household and worried over this bill and that, a woman should have a place where she can throw herself down and, stretched at ease, allow her troubles to straighten themselves out of their own accord."
"By this means hysteria is avoided, beauty is preserved and the woman's chances for salvation are helped."

A Folding Tea Table.
The illustration shows a new English table now used at theaters, lawn parties and porch teas. It could be easily copied by a clever cabinet maker, at though in England it was invented specially for the king. The top can be lifted from the legs, and both parts can then be folded up into a very small space and can be carried in the hand without fear of breakage. The center part, which contains teapot, sugar bowl and hot water kettle on the swinging principle, can be pulled forward, and underneath will be found three small bottles of seltzer. On one side of the tray are three cups and saucers and silver spoons, while on the other side three glasses, cream jug, plates, sugar tongs, corkscrew, etc., are neatly packed.

Things About Sleeping.
Sunlight is good for everything. Away with heavy hangings either above or below the bed! Beware of a dusty, musty carpet; better sweetness and a bare floor. Do not fail to provide some means for ventilation during the night. Keep the head cool while sleeping, but not by a draft of cold air falling upon it. If a folding bed must be used, contrive some way to keep it aired and wholesome. Let the pillow under the shoulders be high enough to bring the head in a natural position, no more nor less. Thoroughly air the sleeping room every day. Air the beds and bedding as often as possible. A dark, out of the way, unwholesome corner is no more fitted for a sleeping room than for a parlor. A feather bed which has done service for a generation or two is not a desirable thing upon which to sleep.

Young Onions on Toast.
It is preferable to use those from sets. These are delicious when served like asparagus on toast. Take onions about as thick as your finger, remove the tough outer layers and cut off the tops, leaving about three inches of green. Tie up in bunches of half a dozen or more, a bunch for each person, and cook slowly until tender. Drain carefully and lay each bunch on a piece of buttered toast, pouring over it a rich cream or drawn butter sauce.

Candied Sweet Potatoes.
To make candied sweet potatoes cut cold sweet potatoes in quarters or slices and spread them on an earthen baking dish. Sprinkle them with bits of butter and granulated or brown sugar. Repeat with each layer, but if you desire to have all the pieces brown have only one layer. Bake in a quick oven until the sugar has thoroughly dissolved and permeated the whole and remove when it is slightly brown.

READY FOR USE.

Kid Ashe and Blackburn.
Cincinnati, June 27.—Kid Ashe left for Indianapolis this morning where he is to box Kid Blackburn in the evening in a ten-round bout before the Cleveland Athletic club. Ashe expects to get on a match in San Francisco after his bout at Indianapolis.

YALE'S VICTORY.
New London, Conn., June 27.—Following within 10 seconds of record time the Yale varsity crew yesterday afternoon lowered the colors of the fastest eight that Harvard has yet produced. Yale won by four boat lengths. Yale's time was 20:22, Harvard's 20:33.

In the four-oared race the colors of Harvard were borne to the front, the Cambridge four winning by two and one-half lengths.

In the freshman race, Yale's crew led over the last mile until within a few feet of the finish, where the Harvard crew by a magnificent spurt jumped their shell up even with the Blue. The judges were compelled to decide that the race was a draw.

Twenty-five thousand people saw the Elis row to victory. President Roosevelt was present.

Fitz Working Hard.
San Francisco, Cal., June 27.—It is a pleasure to see Fitz go to his work. There seems to be no stopping him. Wilson and Dawson cannot give him enough work with the mitts, (so they have made arrangements with Hank Griffin to come up and stand a third of the wear and tear. Fitz is just glorying over the ring arrangements that they have put up for him to exercise in, for now men cannot get away from him, and he just makes it merry for them. Yesterday was the first time that he has worked in it since it has been completed. He kept Sincier Wilson and George Dawson going for five rounds each, making a straight 10 rounds, the others alternating, so as to be able to give Fitz some chance to work. The ex-champion is out first every morning and gives no one rest until Dawson is in the saddle and they are away on the road for a ten mile go. Of late when they have returned Fitz has taken to the mineral plunge as the creek water is a bit too cold.

Joe Gans is a 10 to 8 favorite over George McFadden for the fight tonight chiefly because he is the champion. Both men have had to work hard to make 135 pounds. Eaca promises to be within the limit. They have trained hard and a good, hard fight is expected by sports. Phil Wand has been selected to referee the bout.

SPORTING NOTES.

Coshocton has organized an athletic club which has bought the Elks' gymnasium outfit. A foot ball club is to be organized.

The sporting men of Los Angeles, Jim Jeffries' home, who cannot go to Frisco to see Jeff fight Fitzsimmons, are trying to arrange a match between Jeffries and some husky second rater, to come off before the championship battle at Frisco on July 25. One of the men suggested for Jeff's opponent is Farmer Burns the wrestler. Nothing definite has been done in the matter as yet.

Billy Madden, the manager of Gus Ruhlin, has been very successful on his present trip to London. Both Ruhlin and Denver Ed Martin have brought home the coin for the genial William. On the same night that Ruhlin knocked out Sharkey in 11 rounds Martin whipped Sandy Ferguson of Boston, in five rounds. Martin was to have fought Bob Armstrong, but the latter has not been heard from since he announced his intention of going abroad. Cincinnati Enquirer.

First Canal Boat.

The first canal boat ever built in Licking county, or that ever floated on the waters of the Ohio Canal within its borders, was built by a joint stock company at Hebron in 1827, and was called the "Licking Summit." It was built under the supervision of Joshua Smith. It made its first trip through the "Deep Cut," on the Fourth of July, 1828, but it was built too large to pass the locks, and was so poorly constructed that it drew so much water that it was not thought worth reconstructing, consequently it never left the "Summit Level." It was laid up in the basin at Hebron, and for a while was used as a saloon—then as a notorious resort until it was destroyed as a nuisance or rotted down.

RARE BOOKS FOR MORGAN

The Great Consolidator Makes an Addition to His Library.
From the realms of finance J. Pierpont Morgan has turned to books, rare books, says the New York Journal. Just as he does things completely and quickly in his business, he has converted his library by one purchase into a book lovers' marvel. Mr. Morgan has bought thirty-two volumes printed by Caxton, three by Wood and several by Wynkyn de Worde, Letton, Machlinia, Fynson and Notary, all early printers of England.

Mr. Morgan's treasure trove was in the collection of William Morris, the gentle poet of socialism, that made in the Kelmscott Press a school of handicraft admirable and useful. Patiently, one by one, Mr. Morris collected his incunabula.

To pay for them he deprived himself often of clothes, of coal and of food. At his death they passed into the library of a Mr. Bennett—almost unknown to book lovers here—who was not wealthy enough to keep them. Mr. Morgan has bought them from him in London.

But while Mr. Morgan's library is now extraordinary it is in some respects surpassed by that of Robert Hoe. Mr. Hoe has one book printed by Caxton which Mr. Morgan may not buy. In exchange for it Mr. Hoe would not take the thirty-two Caxtons of Mr. Morgan's library. They may be found elsewhere. Mr. Hoe's invaluable Caxton is unique. It is the "King Arthur" that no other library—not even that of the British Museum—owns. Mr. Morgan's happiness as a book lover is thus imperfect.

Mr. Hoe also has books of France, England and Italy that Mr. Morgan envies. But Mr. Hoe has only seven of the books printed by Caxton. And Mr. Hoe has been at his task of collecting books patiently, with profound learning, for years and years. Mr. Morgan surpasses him in the department of incunabula, or first books printed in Europe, almost by accident.

Mr. Morgan has not time to read these books nor the intention ever to read them. He has bought reprints of them by Haslewood and by the Kelmscott Press for the irrepressible students who will ask to consult them. He has already replied to an expert in Chinese vases who said to him that he did not read his books: "No. Do you serve soup at your dinners in your eggshell, rose back plates?"

Mr. Morgan intends that his library shall be the most valuable private library in the world. In this effort he has the aid of his nephew, Junius Morgan, who quotes fine pages and colophons of ancient books with amazing precision.

PLEA FOR KNEE BREECHES.

Senator Depew Says Court Costume "Wine Trade" For United States.
Senator Chauncey M. Depew, recently interviewed by the New York Evening Journal's London correspondent on the knee breeches question, said:

"The United States has become one of the family of nations. When you become the member of a community, great or small, you have to behave with what is regarded as good manners by that community or be considered a boor. You can be a boor if you like that position. We had a member of congress once who refused to wear a dress suit or socks because he found he could associate only with people who did not wear dress suits and socks, and then he discovered another limitation in that he had to wash his feet."

"Mr. Reid in a recent speech proved by precedent that the wearing of court dress by Americans had existed from the foundation of the government and that we had never departed from it. We don't conform to the requirements of all the courts to which our ambassadors are accredited. The only concession we make at court is the wearing of knee breeches and stockings."

When told that Mr. Morgan wore knickerbockers at the Choate dinner, he smiled without comment. Then he said:

"When we send representatives to a foreign government for the purpose of maintaining friendship and amicable relations, it is not so much for objects of peace or war as for getting trade. If you begin by offending the customs and traditions which foreigners exact from other guests, you will be handicapped as against the nations who do not so offend. Also you will not accomplish so much. Franklin discovered that when he went to France. If we had not sent a special embassy to the coronation, while all other nations did, there would have been ill feeling."

Artificial Eyelids.

The latest surgical triumph, according to the London Science Siftings, is the grafting of a new set of upper and lower eyelids to the eyes of a man who lost his original set in a fire. The accident had left both eyelids entirely unprotected, and there was danger of the victim losing his sight entirely. It was resolved to replace them by grafting four new eyelids, if possible, by taking the skin from the hip of the patient. It was necessary to proceed slowly, but the experiment was successful from the start. The four new eyelids perform their normal functions naturally.

Schwab Made King Edward Laugh.
King Edward laughed heartily at a story told him by Mr. Schwab, the steel trust president, says the New York Herald. "I was taking the reins from the colored driver of my buggy one day in Pittsburg," said Mr. Schwab, "when I overheard a poor woman on the sidewalk say to her little daughter, 'That's Mr. Schwab.' 'Which one?' queried the child artlessly. Since that time, your majesty, I have never been able to help thinking I must be a great man."

NEWS FROM THE GAS FIELD.

(Utica Herald.)

The directors of the Utica Gas company have called a meeting of the stockholders for next Tuesday evening, to transact business of importance. It is said that the object of the meeting is to have the stockholders empower the directors to increase the capital stock of the company, or else authorize them to borrow funds that may be needed to pipe the village after the completion of well No. 2. * * Their are more than one hundred separate stockholders in the home company.

The Utica company already has contracts enough in Utica to guarantee a profitable dividend upon the entire capital stock, at prices which average about one-third below the lowest ever charged by the old company, and only about half the price paid by consumers in other cities and towns.

SYLLABUS

Of the Court's Finding Which Destroys the Salary System Which Was Announced Thursday.

The Supreme court Thursday gave out its written report on Tuesday's decisions knocking out county salary laws on test cases from Pickaway and Holmes counties.

The syllabus of the decision is in part as follows:

1. County officers are not local officers, but are a part of the permanent organization of the government of the state, and the subject of compensation to county officers is not local in its nature, and an act of the general assembly upon that subject is a law of a general nature which must operate uniformly throughout the state.

2. An act of the general assembly not coming within the exceptions stated in the constitution, article 2, section 26, which is passed to take effect and be in force when a majority of the voters at an election shall declare in favor of a salary law, and if a majority of the voters do not so declare to be void, is passed to take effect upon the approval of authority other than the general assembly, and it is therefore unconstitutional and void.

Promptly at 3 o'clock amidst the sweet strains of the wedding march played most skillfully by Miss Nettie Laycock, sister of the bride, the bridal couple, accompanied by Mr. Hewitt Shauck and Miss Ethel Dewar, both of Newark, O., as best man and bride's maid; and with little Gracie Laycock, Grace Stewart, Olive Gilmore and Margaret Cash as ribbon girls, appeared at the head of the stairs and slowly passed through the line of ribbons to the parlor, where the beautiful though solemn ring ceremony was performed. High joined them for life. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party and guests repaired to the dining room where an elegant supper was served by Alexandria's popular caterer, Mr. S. S. Anderson, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After the supper the happy couple received the hearty congratulations of the assembled guests.

The bride was prettily attired in a beautiful cream brocade silk, trimmed in renaissance lace and ribbon, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore a light blue silk trimmed in white silk and applique, and carried a bunch of red roses.

The couple received a great many beautiful and valuable tokens of love and esteem from their friends.

The bride is the second daughter of Doctor and Mrs. L. C. Laycock, and is a most estimable young lady; a graduate of the Alexandria High School of the class of 1901. The groom is very popular with a large circle of friends and is the third son of the late Samuel Stewart of Newark township, and is in the employ of the firm of Moser Wehrle Co., of Newark, O., in which city the young couple will reside.
